HMS Hermes - forces den re-shuffle

Having recently acquired 3 large models and having a 89" Rodney hull that I am always bumping into I have taken on a major project of reworking how I store my models. I have learnt the hard way that it makes more sense to clear working space first than it does to assemble new shelving in a room that has ended up being grid locked - blood pressure has been elevated last few days - but it's possible my project may in the long term mean all my models are easily accessible - will be the first time in years!!! And I have just remembered those that are stashed in the loft - maybe back to the drawing board ? Regards Jonathan _._
